Madison Ryan, known affectionately by her closest friends and family as Kismet, lived a life that was as extraordinary as it was impactful. Born with cerebral palsy, Madison defied all expectations and became a world-renowned equestrian, disability advocate, and inspiration to millions around the globe.

Kismet's journey began in the small town of Dubois, Wyoming, where she grew up in a loving and supportive family. From a young age, she exhibited an unyielding passion for horses, and it was through this passion that she discovered her true calling.

As a young girl, Kismet was introduced to a gentle horse named Chance. With patience and determination, she slowly gained his trust and formed an unbreakable bond with him. Through Chance, Kismet realized the healing power of horses and the transformative potential of human-animal connection.

Word of Kismet's extraordinary abilities with horses quickly spread throughout Wyoming and beyond. Soon, she was invited to share her knowledge and expertise with others who faced physical and developmental challenges.

In 2004, Kismet founded the Kismet Riding Therapy Center in Dubois, Wyoming. This non-profit organization provided equine-assisted therapy and riding lessons to individuals with disabilities, helping them to overcome challenges, gain confidence, and improve their overall well-being.

Through her work at the Kismet Riding Therapy Center, Kismet touched the lives of countless individuals, including veterans, children with autism, and adults with cerebral palsy. Her unwavering belief in the power of horses to heal and empower others became her life's mission.

Kismet's dedication to her work extended far beyond the confines of the riding center. She became a sought-after speaker and advocate, traveling the world to share her story and inspire others to embrace their own unique abilities.

In 2011, Kismet was named one of the "Top 50 Most Influential Women in Wyoming" by Wyoming Business Report. She was also the recipient of numerous awards and accolades, including the "Spirit of Wyoming Award" from the Wyoming Governor's Office.

Despite her many accomplishments, Kismet remained humble and grounded. She never forgot her roots in Dubois, and she always made time to give back to her community.

Kismet's life was tragically cut short in 2014 when she was killed in a car accident. She was just 39 years old.

In the wake of her passing, Kismet's legacy continued to grow. The Kismet Riding Therapy Center continues to serve individuals with disabilities, and her story continues to inspire countless others to live their lives to the fullest.

Madison Ryan, known as Kismet, was a true pioneer and an inspiration to all who knew her. Her unwavering determination, passion for horses, and belief in the power of human connection left an indelible mark on the world.

Kismet's life was a testament to the transformative power of the human spirit. Through her work with horses and her advocacy for individuals with disabilities, she made a profound difference in the lives of countless others. Her legacy will continue to inspire and empower generations to come.
