Stripping art is a unique and eye-catching form of vehicle decoration that has been popular for decades. It is often seen on buses and trucks, but it can also be applied to cars, motorcycles, and even bicycles.

Stripping art is created by applying thin lines of paint to the surface of a vehicle. These lines can be straight, curved, or even freehand. They can be used to create simple designs, such as stripes or checkers, or more complex designs, such as flames or tribal patterns.

There are two main techniques used to create stripping art: pinstriping and freehand stripping. Pinstriping involves using a special brush called a pinstriping brush to apply thin lines of paint. Freehand stripping involves using a regular brush or a stripping pen to apply lines freehand.

Striping art can be a challenging technique to master, but it can be very rewarding. With practice, you can create beautiful and unique designs that will make your vehicle stand out from the crowd.

The History of Striping Art

Striping art has a long and rich history. It is believed to have originated in the United States in the early 1900s. At that time, it was common for people to decorate their cars with pinstripes. These pinstripes were often used to accentuate the body lines of the car and to make it look more stylish.

In the 1950s and 1960s, striping art became increasingly popular on hot rods and custom cars. These cars were often decorated with elaborate striping designs that were inspired by the flames and scallops that were popular on fighter planes at the time.

Today, striping art is still popular on buses and trucks. It is also used on a variety of other vehicles, including cars, motorcycles, and bicycles. Striping art can be used to create a variety of different looks, from simple and elegant to bold and flashy.

The Different Techniques of Striping Art

There are two main techniques used to create striping art: pinstriping and freehand striping.

Pinstriping involves using a special brush called a pinstriping brush to apply thin lines of paint. Pinstriping brushes are very fine, and they allow you to create very precise lines.

Freehand striping involves using a regular brush or a striping pen to apply lines freehand. Freehand striping is more difficult than pinstriping, but it allows you to create more organic and flowing lines.

Both pinstriping and freehand striping can be used to create beautiful and unique striping designs. The best technique for you will depend on your skill level and the desired look you are trying to achieve.

How to Create Your Own Custom Striping Design

If you are interested in creating your own custom striping design, there are a few things you will need to do.

First, you will need to decide on the type of striping you want to create. Do you want to create simple stripes or checkers, or do you want to create a more complex design? Once you have decided on the type of striping you want to create, you will need to choose the right colors for your design.

Next, you will need to prepare the surface of your vehicle for striping. This involves cleaning the surface and removing any dirt or debris. Once the surface is clean, you can apply a primer to help the paint adhere better.

Once the primer is dry, you can begin applying your striping. If you are using a pinstriping brush, you will need to load the brush with paint and then carefully apply the paint to the surface of your vehicle. If you are using a regular brush or a striping pen, you can simply apply the paint freehand.

Once you have applied the striping, you will need to let it dry completely. Once the paint is dry, you can apply a clear coat to protect it from the elements.

Creating your own custom striping design can be a challenging but rewarding experience. With practice, you can create beautiful and unique designs that will make your vehicle stand out from the crowd.
